Our Mission

To promote the development of positive behavior, health, and independence for individuals and families caught up in the cycles of substance abuse and addiction, criminal behavior, and mental illness, and to increase our client's sense of selfworth and self-efficacy by assisting them as they gain sobriety and commit to long-term recovery, which includes medical stability, mental health, and active engagement in the community at large.

Director's Letter

The second year of the COVID-19 pandemic was a year of challenges and successes for Homeward Bound Inc. Thanks to our dedicated staff and support from the IRS Employee Retention Credit (ERC) we're intact and expanding.

A wing of our southern Dallas treatment facility was remodeled to house the Dallas Deflection Center and Parkland Hospital's on-site clinic. Both will open in the spring of 2022. Spearheaded by Dallas District Attorney John Creuzot, this new center will allow law enforcement officers to give low level offenders a choice between treatment at Homeward Bound or jail. Dallas County Commissioners allocated funds to renovate the space and create a private entrance for law enforcement officers to bring referrals so that we can offer real-time mental health support and services.

Generous gifts from the W.W. Caruth, Jr. Fund at the Communities Foundation of Texas continued to support our Medically Assisted Treatment (MAT) program for opioid use disorders. As the grant ended, we were able to fulfill our pledge to make the opioid MAT program fully self-supporting. This service brings the gold standard for opioid treatment to North Texas' indigent and homeless people.

We moved our outpatient clinics and business offices to a fancy new 38,000 square-foot building at 2535 Lone Star Drive, west of downtown just off I-30. Our three wonderful VISTA AmeriCorps volunteers hosted a "Fall Festival" grand opening in October with a cake walk, cotton candy, live music including kind words and congratulations from Dallas County Commissioners John Wiley Price and Theresa Daniel. Our Board Chair, The Honorable Jesse Oliver, spoke about his years of support and faith in Homeward Bound's mission. Carol Lucky, CEO of the North Texas Behavioral Health Authority, presented the essential role of Homeward Bound in the community.

If you're on I-30, between Hampton and Westmoreland, look north just west of the SPCA, to catch a glimpse of our new sign. Drop by any time. We would love to show you around.

DALLAS DEFLECTS!

With the combined efforts of the Dallas County District Attorney's Office, Public Defender's Office, Dallas Police Department, North Texas Behavioral Health Authority (NTBHA), and Parkland Hospital and major sponsorships from AT&T, the Roman Catholic Diocese of Dallas, the Texas Bar Foundation, the Parkland Foundation, the Honorable John Cruezot, and the Mark Cuban Foundation, Homeward Bound is set to host the first Jail Deflection Center in the DFW area and the second one in the state of Texas.

Dallas Deflects will prevent individuals who are charged with certain low-level, non-violent misdemeanor offenses, such as criminal trespassing, from entering the criminal justice system. Those with mental illnesses and co-occurring substance use disorders will be directed instead to treatment facilities based on their individual needs instead of being discharged to the streets.

What is the estimated impact of Dallas Deflects and its services?

If we can get these people treated, we think we'll be able to get the majority of [them] into whatever service they need and out into the community. We think we can significantly cut down - maybe one half - of the people in jail right now [for offenses like criminal trespass].

What's your favorite part about heading the new Deflection Center?

I kind of envision a Swiss Watch. All these little things are moving around and...have to mesh together to tell the time and that's pretty much my job: coordination of all the services.

DIRECTOR HIGHLIGHT

Dave Hogan, LCSW-S Dallas Deflects Clinical Director

How has your work been with the city previously and how has it prepared you for this position?

I transferred into the Social Service Unit and went out and did police referrals and encountered homeless people. I did that for a long time. It's a different piece of this big puzzle that is homelessness. Eventually, I retired and from there I picked up with the Deflection Center.

What is the current state of the center?

[COVID] really slowed everything down. It had a pretty big impact. There is still a schedule. The projected date right now for opening and being full operational will be mid-August.

RICHARD

Client Highlight

Richard is described as "the man with the best laugh you've ever heard." His deep, soothing voice warms the room as he describes his journey of becoming and loving who he is today.

Richard, 49, has been sober since he came to Homeward Bound in March 2017. He was a man who believed that he didn't deserve to be loved. For decades, he'd slept on a cardboard box in the splintering Texas heat, in the company of flies in the day and mosquitoes at night, with only one purpose: to get high. On his first day at Homeward Bound, he sat on the floor next to the trash can because he felt that was where he belonged.

He first came to Homeward Bound for food, shelter and safety. He didn't want to change. Every day he needled his counselor, asking: "Dude, why don't you help me?" until one day the counselor responded, "Why would I help someone who doesn't want my help?"

Richard wasn't expecting that question. Strangely, miraculously even, it got through to him. The next day he started one of Homeward Bound's 12-step programs and enlisted a sponsor to help him. It wasn't easy. All he really wanted was to leave and get high. Instead, he sat in one particular chair each day, holding tightly to the arms, looking out the window. One day gazing toward Methodist Hospital, it seemed as if a bright golden line formed in front of his eyes, with a star on top. He didn't think much of it at first. But the next few days, he sat in the same chair, looking in the same direction for the golden line and star. They didn't appear. Richard began to think God had sent him a vision with a message attached. The message was, "Be still my son." And so he stayed still in that chair, day after day, letting himself be loved by Homeward Bound. That was the first step toward learning to love himself.

Richard began to believe God had a purpose for him. He knew who he had been: a homeless, black, gay, HIV-positive, ex-con with an addiction. He was exactly what society said he would be, just a statistic. But at Homeward Bound, he was more than a number. Homeward Bound saw him as a person of value, believed he had potential, and assured him that he could be more than how society saw him.

Today Richard, once a taker, is a man who gives. He's a bright student on his way to becoming a licensed chemical dependency counselor. He proved to himself and others that he is not a statistic. He's a devoted son, a proud dog dad, and a man serving others, full of joy, love, and gratitude.

2021 New Facilities

Corsicana Respite House

In addition to our Corsicana outpatient services location, Homeward Bound opened a 6-bed crisis respite home designed to provide voluntary. short-term, community-based crisis treatment for people who have a low risk of harm to themselves and others. This beautiful rural home, turned into a low-stress, casual environment for those in mental health crises, assists individuals in developing functional living and coping skills. Funded by NTBHA, it has been an incredible addition to our Homeward Bound family, focused on our increasing demand for mental health services.

Lone Star

Our new Administration, Substance Use and Mental Health Outpatient, and Recovery Support Services building, previously located at 315 Sunset Dr., officially opened at 2535 Lone Star with a Fall Festival (see page 13) in November of 2021. Our new building boasts two floors with plenty of space for our current staff, our community partners, and future growth for our programs and our clients in the recovery process. Our new location in Lone Star Park puts us close to downtown and gives easy access to I-30 and Tarrant County.

Employee Highlight

Darrell Langley, a husband, son, and father of 3 girls, recalls his arrival at Homeward Bound looking for a job. "I didn't know what I wanted to do with my life. All I knew is I needed to pay the bills. [I needed to] buy hair bows and dresses for my daughters." After a tough life struggling with homelessness and his mother's substance use, he wanted the best for himself and his family.

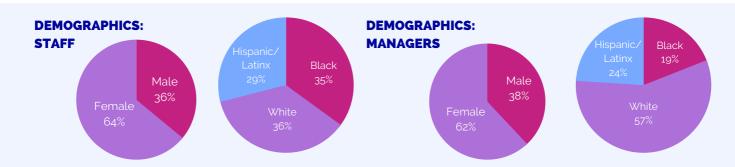

In 2006, Darrell needed some sense of stability. He would go from job to job every year or two but never did anything of substance. Remembering a busy Jefferson Street booming with businesses from when he and his wife married, Darrell started walking the area looking for jobs. He saw a building with people standing outside It was Homeward Bound's Inpatient Facility on 10th Street and Madison. He walked in to ask questions and eventually filled out an application.

With no phone and no car, Darrell walked 10 miles each way to Homeward Bound every day to check on the status of his application. After two weeks of 20-mile walks, Darrell was recognized by a Women's Unit Clerk. She had seen him walking on her drive to work. She interviewed him and gave him a start date as a tech on the spot.

Now at Homeward Bound for 13 years, Darrell feels that he's found his purpose in life. "I saw the longevity of some of those who were here and saw the work they put in...I found out here what I wanted to be." As a self-proclaimed servant, Darrell has worked his way up from Unit Clerk to Peer Recovery Coach, touching so many lives along the way. "My experience with Homeward Bound is the best I have had in my life," Darrell proudly says. "We do the best work. We have the most impact on the person's life, on the person's outcome...We leave no one behind."

The Rebrand

Brightside Blue

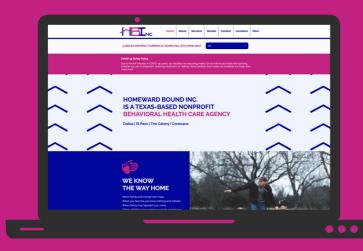

Recovery Rose

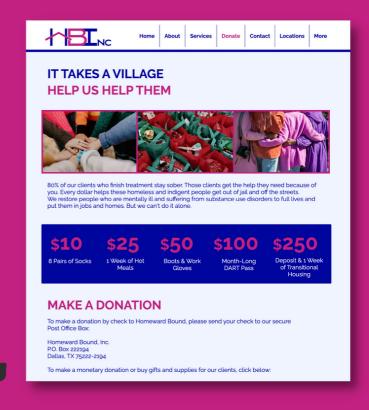

2021 brought a new image to Homeward Bound, Inc. Our new colors - Brightside Blue and Recovery Rose - bring some color and hope into our work and our clients' lives.

The new logo represents the sanctuary that Homeward Bound is. Within the logo, the upward arrow that forms the 'H' signifies a roof but also a way to rise above and move forward.

VOLUNTEER HIGHLIGHT

Single Spirit Class at First Baptist Church - Dallas

Starting with a question and a chance connection, Single Spirit has spent more than a decade with Homeward Bound. In 2013, the late David Johnson, former men's unit counselor and member of Single Spirit, recognized the need for clothing for his clients and approached the Single Spirit teacher to see if the class would be interested in hosting a clothing drive. After an excess of clothes arrived at their door, they have made trips to Homeward Bound almost every six weeks since.

Known as the logistics woman, Inez Sookma has helped streamline the group's volunteer efforts and expand their capacity. Chris Brown describes how they've grown over the years with the help of kind members of the community. For example, they collect more expensive clothes and barter them with a resale facility in Richardson to buy more casual clothing items for half their original price.

Some members have a special connection with Homeward Bound, due to a personal or family history with addiction. Gwen Rinkenberger describes how her uncle and mother struggled with addiction and went through a similar treatment program. She knows how her family's lives changed because of treatment and so she wants to be there for other similar treatment facilities. Gwen remembers a particular interaction with an older female client who lit up with gratitude when she learned she could get new, clean undergarments. She had come to Homeward Bound with none.

"It's a blessing to be able to provide things that people need as a result of God's provision," says Inez. In addition to clothes, the group also offers clients a chance to pray and gives them spiritual support. With Single Spirit's benevolence, Homeward Bound clients are not only getting the essentials they need, but also receiving the emotional and spiritual fulfillment necessary for a better life.

On November 12, 2021, we presented our brand new administration and outpatient building to the public with a grand opening Fall Festival. Executive Director Doug Denton led a ribbon-cutting ceremony to welcome our clients into our new space. We are incredibly grateful to be welcomed into our new community and highlight some of the incredible organizations that have gotten us to this point.

2021 brought one of our proudest accomplishments - the opening of our food pantry. Working with North Texas Food Bank and our incredible group of AmeriCorps VISTA volunteers, we were able to open and establish a food pantry at our new Dallas - Lone Star location (see page 8). After transforming the space with flooring, storage, and a mural, the pantry passed inspection and will begin to accept donations and distribute food in 2022.
